Schmerz verstehen und überwinden - Schmerzfrei durch Stressabbau und richtige Atemtechnik -

Endlich Hilfe für Schmerzpatienten Sie leiden unter chronischen Schmerzen, haben eine Ärzteodyssee hinter sich und sind immer noch nicht beschwerdefrei? Großbritanniens bekanntester Osteopath Nick \"the Neck\" Potter klärt in diesem Buch über die wahren Ursachen von Schmerzen auf. Für ihn haben Schmerzen nicht nur biologische, sondern auch soziale und psychologische Ursachen. In den allermeisten Fällen liegt der Ursprung der Schmerzen im psychosozialen Dauerstress, dem wir in der heutigen Zeit ausgesetzt sind, Stichworte Social Media, Stress am Arbeitsplatz, Weltgeschehen etc. Dieser chronische Stress wirkt sich auf alle Lebensbereiche aus: Er steigert die Entzündungswerte im Körper, verschlechtert die Körperhaltung, kann Depressionen verursachen und führt zu einem falschen Atmen aus der Brust heraus, anstatt aus dem Bauch. All das führt über kurz oder lang zu Schmerzbeschwerden, zu einem chronifiziertem, stressbedingtem Schmerz, der dann solche Namen wie Fibromyalgie, Migräne, Reizdarm und CFS (chronic fatigue syndrome) haben kann. Das muss aber nicht sein! Sagen Sie mit diesem Buch dem Schmerz den Kampf an! Neben umfassenden Einblicken in die wahren Ursachen von Schmerz enthält jedes der neun Kapitel eine Patientengeschichte, die die jeweiligen Inhalte anhand von realen Fällen verdeutlicht. Daneben gibt es eine ganze Reihe von Ratschlägen und Tipps, um Schmerzen vorzubeugen und dauerhaft loszuwerden.

Die fünf Modelle der Osteopathie

What can the history of technology contribute to our understanding of late imperial China? Most stories about technology in pre-modern China follow a well-worn plot: in about 1400 after an early ferment of creativity that made it the most technologically sophisticated civilisation in the world, China entered an era of technical lethargy and decline. But how are we to reconcile this tale, which portrays China in the Ming and Qing dynasties as a dying giant that had outgrown its own strength, with the wealth of counterevidence affirming that the country remained rich, vigorous and powerful at least until the end of the eighteenth century? Does this seeming contradiction mean that the stagnation story is simply wrong, or perhaps that technology was irrelevant to how imperial society worked? Or does it imply that historians of technology should ask better questions about what technology was, what it did and what it meant in pre-modern societies like late imperial China? In this book, Francesca Bray explores subjects such as technology and ethics, technology and gendered subjectivities (both female and male), and technology and statecraft to illuminate how material settings and practices shaped topographies of everyday experience and ideologies of government, techniques of the self and technologies of the subject. Examining technologies ranging from ploughing and weaving to drawing pictures, building a house, prescribing medicine or composing a text, this book offers a rich insight into the interplay between the micro- and macro-politics of everyday life and the workings of governmentality in late imperial China, showing that gender principles were woven into the very fabric of empire, from cosmology and ideologies of rule to the material foundations of the state and the everyday practices of the domestic sphere. This authoritative text will be welcomed by students and scholars of Chinese history, as well as those working on global history and the histories of gender, technology and agriculture. Furthermore, it will be of great use to those interested in social and cultural anthropology and material culture.

I am helpless in the face of my problems.\" Even at this very moment your severe depression is whispering in your ear, \"This is all bulls@t.\" Your depression has lived with you for a long time, and has seldom left your side. 'If you care about the length and quality of your life but can't stomach yet another diet or workout routine, this book is for you' - Adam Grant, New York Times bestselling author 'Finally, a lifestyle book that transcends diet and exercise for solutions for living longer' - Dan Buettner, National Geographic Fellow and New York Times bestselling author A smart, research-driven case for why optimism, kindness and strong social networks will help us live to 100. What to do to live long? From fountain-searching Ponce de Leon to pill-popping Silicon Valley techies humanity has been trying to pinpoint the answer for centuries, often fixating on all the wrong things: miracle diets, miracle foods, miracle supplements. We skip gluten and invest in exercise gadgets. We swallow vitamins. We obsess about BMI. While healthy nutrition and physical activity are indeed important for health, there are things we all too often sacrifice in favour of fad diets that have an outsize impact on our centenarian potential. Friendships. Purpose in life. Empathy. Kindness. Science shows that these 'soft' health drivers are often more powerful than diet and exercise. Consider the numbers: studies show that building a strong support network of family and friends lowers mortality risk by about 45 per cent. Exercise, on the other hand, can lower that risk by 23 to 33 per cent. Eating six servings of fruit and veg per day can cut the danger of dying early by 26 per cent, while following the Mediterranean diet by 21 per cent. For volunteering, it's 22 to 44 per cent. Many more examples like this led Marta Zaraska to her ultimate conclusion: you should be contemplating your purpose in life, not the best fitness tracker to buy. Humans are social animals. Over the course of our evolution we've developed intertwined systems that regulate our social lives on one hand and our physiology on the other, contributing to our centenarian potential. The amygdala and the insula in the brain, the social hormones oxytocin and serotonin, the vagus nerve, the HPA stress axis - these all link our bodies and our minds, contributing to our centenarian potential. We feel safe when we are surrounded by friendly others. The nervous system, the gastrointestinal system, the immune system all function properly when the tribe is there for us and when we are there for the tribe. We flourish as part of a group. Marta Zaraska based Growing Young on hundreds of research papers and on interviews with dozens of leading scientists from fields as diverse as molecular biochemistry, cyber psychology, marketing and zoology. The book's research took her to rather unexpected places, too: catching wild mice in the woods of England, sipping super-smoothies at a longevity bootcamp in Portugal and arranging flowers with octogenarians in Japan. In the end, all the studies, the interviews and the travels brought her to a simple conclusion: self-improvement, commitment to growing as a person, can also help us grow younger. To Michael Pollan's famous statement on health: 'Eat food, not too much, mostly plants,' she now adds: 'Be social, care for others, enjoy life.'
